What is

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
Dr. G. C. Osgood,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
Dr. J. F. Kincheloe,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. Archer, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."
United Hospital and Dispensary,
Boston, Mass.

Farm Buildings and Stock Burned in Plymouth

NEWPORT, Oct. 30. The farm buildings of D. B. Ferguson, of Plymouth, were burned this morning with three horses, fifty tons of hay, three cows, etc. Loss, $3,000; insurance $1,800. Cause unknown.

House Burned in Farmington

FARMINGTON, Oct. 30. The house, ell and stable of John F. Norton, of North Farmington, were burned Saturday evening. Cause, a lantern fell from a peg and broke. Part of the contents of the house were saved. Loss about $1,500; partly insured.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Colored People Ask Aid for Colonization

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30. The committee appointed by a convention of negro lawyers recently held in Chattanooga, have arrived in Washington to urge upon Congress the recommendation of the convention, in case the government does not protect the negro, that one billion dollars be appropriated with which the colored people of this country may be colonized. No particular locality for their promised land has been selected by the colored lawyers, but they seem to favor some part of South or Central America. The committee ran across their first obstruction in the person of the only member of Congress of their race, Mr. Murray, of South Carolina. Congressman Murray will present the memorial to the House, as he has been requested to do so, but he is very strongly opposed to the scheme.

The Desks of the Senate Were Cleared for action this morning, the full Senate, allowing for the three vacant seats in the northwestern States, would be eighty-five. Mr. Mitchell, of Oregon, is away because of sickness in his family, Mr. Wilson, of Iowa, is detained there by personal sickness, and his colleague, Mr. Allison, is also there, but is paired. Mr. Chandler of New Hampshire has an eccentric record on this question. He went away requesting to be paired in favor of bimetallism. This was so indefinite an instruction that his pair after being shifted around for a good many times, has been dropped in some of the labor divisions. When a vote is finally taken there is no reason to doubt that the bill before the Senate for final action of yea or nay it will be the Voorhees bill, unamended and unchanged.

The Voorhees Bill

The text of this bill is as follows:

That so much of the act approved July 14, 1890, entitled an act directing the purchase of silver bullion and issue of treasury notes thereon, and for other purposes, as directs the secretary of the treasury to purchase from time to time silver bullion to the aggregate amount of 4,500,000 ounces, or so much thereof as may be offered in each month at the market price thereof, not exceeding $1 for 371.25-100 grains of pure silver and to issue in payment for such purchases treasury notes of the United States, be and the same is hereby repealed, and it is hereby declared to be the policy of the United States to continue the use of both gold and silver as standard money and coin both gold and silver into money of equal intrinsic and exchangeable value, such equality to be secured through international agreement or by such safeguards of legislation as will insure the maintenance of the parity in value of the coins of the two metals and the equal power of every dollar at all times in the markets and in the payment of debts. And it is hereby further declared that the efforts of the government should be steadily directed to the establishment of such a safe system of bimetallism as will maintain at all times the equal power of every dollar coined or issued by the United States in the markets and in the payment of debts.

Prendergast Writing to Senators

There has been a story going the rounds that Prendergast, the assassin of Mayor Harrison of Chicago, has been writing letters to senators in which he abused President Cleveland. How many senators received them is not known, but Senator DuBois has received a great batch of postal cards from the man. They began coming three weeks ago and have come with regularity ever since. They were read at first, but DuBois soon saw they were from a crank and paid no attention to them.

The Nomination of Mr. Hornblower

An impression prevails that the Judiciary Committee of the Senate will take no action on the nomination of Mr. Hornblower, nominated to be Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, and that it will therefore go over until the regular session in December, providing, of course, the Senate adjourns. There was a meeting of the committee this morning and the nomination was discussed for some time, but no action was taken. It is said the committee is in receipt of letters from New York in opposition to the confirmation of Mr. Hornblower.

ACCIDENTS ON THE RAIL

One Man Dies and Two Others in a Critical Condition

DANBURY, Conn., Oct. 30. Michael Donnelly and John Collins of this city had been hunting yesterday in Redding and were about to board the train at West Redding for home. The dog which they had with them refused to go on the train and Collins tried to drag him along. He lost his balance and fell beneath the wheels. Donelly tried to save his companion and both men were run over. They were brought to Danbury Hospital. Collins's legs were crushed and he died in four hours. Donelly's legs had to be amputated and his condition is precarious. Both have families and are well known in this city.

At Bethel, four miles above Redding, Charles Comstock, of that place, fell from the same train and struck on the railroad track on his head. He had not regained consciousness at noon to-day. It is thought his skull is fractured.

MURDERER PRENDERGAST

Refuses to Talk About the Assassination

CHICAGO, Oct. 30. Patrick Eugene Prendergast spent a quiet night in his cell in the county jail. He slept quietly from midnight till 6 o'clock. No special guard was placed over him last night, but the guards watched him closely during the night. At 7 o'clock his breakfast was brought to him and he brightened up at once. He was hungry and ate the plain prison fare with a relish. At 8 o'clock a reporter called upon the murderer, who looked up sullenly as the visitor entered the cell.

"Well, Prendergast, how are you feeling this morning?" he was asked.

"Oh I feel all right I guess, I am all right."

"Had a good night's rest, did you?"

"Yes, I guess so, I always sleep all right."

At this point Prendergast became silent and leaning half back on his bed, closed his eyes. All efforts to lead the man gradually into conversation about the assassination failed.

NARROWLY AVERTED

Train Wrecker's Work in New York

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 30. An attempt was made last night to wreck the express train on the Auburn road. The train was going at a high rate of speed at the time. A man discovered a pile of railroad ties on the track at Railroad Mills, 15 miles east of Rochester. He immediately started for help and aroused Postmaster Getting, of Railroad Mills, who took a lantern and ran down the track just in time to signal the train.

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

A Quiet Day in Honor of the Dead Mayor.

Impressive Ceremonies Take the Place of Brilliant Festivities.

The Fair to Close by Limitation of Act of Congress.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30. To-day the White City at Jackson Park was quiet in honor of Chicago's dead Mayor. Instead of oratory, [illegible] and fete and fluttering of thousands of banners there was everywhere the evidences of silent [illegible]. The great exposition will merely close by limitation of the act of Congress. The flags will remain as they were all day yesterday at half mast, but at sunset a national salute of twenty-one guns was fired as an announcement that the nation's fair has officially closed.

At 11 A. M. in Festival Hall, the big meeting, which had been planned for speeches of congratulation and of presenting to foreign commissioners the evidences of the success of the exhibitors was abandoned so far as the [illegible] features are concerned. When the invited guests and the public reached the hall it was to hear resolutions of regret over the taking away of Carter Harrison. The ceremonies will be simple and impressive.

While there will be no ceremonies to-day the grounds and buildings will be open as usual. There is no wish to keep the people away, but merely that there shall be no demonstration. The buildings will be open to-night and there will be the usual illumination about the grand basin, but no band concerts will be given.

From turret, dome and spire of the White City's palaces hung the emblems

of the Nations at Mourning Height

on this the dying day of the World's Columbian Exposition. People came and looking towards the sunlit sky of blue realized that not only Chicago mourned but also the whole world of humanity as represented at the exposition. They found no evidences of rejoicing over the crowning achievement of the age, no sounds of sweet music in the court of honor, no merry throngs, no celebration, only a solemn stillness, an unquestioned tribute to the memory of Chicago's Mayor. The multitude had their tribute of respect on the bier of the assassinated [illegible] as much by their presence and their quiet actions as if they had laid rich flowers on the casket and eulogized the dead in eloquent speech.

At eleven o'clock the committee of twelve which was chosen to draft the resolutions which were read to the people in Festival Hall met in President Higginbotham's office. The resolutions express at some length and in the most sympathetic language the general sorrow and shock which the tragic end of the World's Fair City's Chief Magistrate created in the hearts and minds of the National Commissioners, Foreign and State representatives, the Board of Lady Managers, the Exhibitors, the Directors and Executive officers of the Exposition. One set of resolutions was presented by President Higginbotham on behalf of the board of directors and another by Commissioner Massey of Delaware for the national commission. The Rev. John Henry Barrows, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, delivered the prayer with which the funeral, with crying, as it really was, began.

Following This Sad Opening

which brought tears from many thousands in the great hall, came the formal announcement by President Palmer of the Mayor's death, and the statement that all exercises of a festive character would be omitted. Resolutions were then presented without any accompanying speech, although many eloquent orators were present. President Palmer then formally announced that in compliance with the act of Congress the exposition was officially at an end as a world's exposition.

After Rev. Dr. Barrows had pronounced benediction and offered up a short prayer, the gathering of mourners quietly dispersed. The World's Fair like Carter Harrison was no more.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT

SINGULAR OMISSION

No Provision for Filling the Vacancy in the Office of Mayor

CHICAGO, Oct. 30. It seems to be a great lack of [illegible] to the [illegible] of the city council in the matter of a vacancy caused by the death of Mayor Harrison. There is no provision [illegible] dealing directly with the question. Some of the lawyers [illegible] of the [illegible] held that [illegible] provides that [illegible] temporary absence or disability of the Mayor, the City Council shall elect one of its number to act as Mayor [illegible] including such absence or disability all the powers of Mayor. The Aldermen are determined to act on the [illegible] interpretation of this. They will probably do this [illegible] the Mayor's funeral Wednesday.

MURDERED IN HER BED

A Woman Fatally Shot While Asleep by Her Alleged Husband

John Simpson, alias Roumell, of Philadelphia, murdered his wife Mary Simpson, aged thirty-one years, on Tuesday night as she lay asleep in her bed, and held [illegible] two friends at the point of a revolver for the purpose of preventing them from revealing the crime. At seven o'clock Wednesday evening he left them, and up to a late hour had not been apprehended, although the police and [illegible] city detectives were working on the case and had searched every place where he was likely to be found. Simpson is an agent of the Prudential Insurance Company, and another agent named Kurtz, to whom he first told the story of the murder, is locked up at the [illegible] district station house as a suspected accomplice.

According to the story told to the police by Kurtz, and which the police believe is true, [illegible] the murderer [illegible] his home early on Tuesday evening, at which time he says he saw him throw [illegible] over the [illegible] fence of his yard [illegible]. He then went out and drank heavily, after which he returned to the house and upbraided his wife for her unfaithfulness. She denied this, and shortly afterwards retired to her room. Soon after she fell asleep Simpson loaded a revolver, quietly made his way to her room and placing the weapon so close to her body that the flash ignited the bed clothing fired a bullet into her body. Thinking that this shot, which had passed through her body after entering her directly over her heart, had not insured death he fired again, the last ball passing through both her hands, which were folded across her breast.

After firing the shots the murderer, in order to ward off suspicion from himself and to give the affair the appearance of having been committed by some one who had entered the house during his absence, threw bed clothing upon the floor and disarranged the furniture about the room so that indications of a struggle with the unknown man would not be wanting.

After the bloody work had been completed Simpson, it is supposed, lay down upon a bed in a small sitting room and slept until daylight. He was in the house when an expressman called shortly after seven o'clock and refused to receive the goods.

"Take them next door and leave them there," he said, and the man did as directed.

At about eight o'clock an agent of the Prudential Company named Kurtz, whose residence is at 8 18 north Sixteenth street, called to see Simpson.

"Come up stairs," said the latter to his companion, "and I'll show you something I've done."

"Now," said he to his horrified friend as he pointed to his wife's body on the bed, "swear that you will not tell a word of this to any person, or by ——, I'll kill you," and as he said this Simpson produced the revolver with which he had killed his wife and cocked it. The agent gave the promise and together the two men left the house, going across the street to the cigar store of William Hahn, at the corner of York and Philadelphia streets, another man with whom he was quite intimate.

Hahn was invited to take a walk, and after going a short distance Simpson turned suddenly to Hahn, and, drawing the revolver, said: "If you say a word of what I tell you I'll kill you as surely as I have my wife." He then unfolded the story, took Hahn to the house and showed him the body.

The three men left the house, and all day they were kept together by the threats of Simpson to kill them both if they attempted to leave him. The men were thoroughly cowed, and although several officers were passed during their travels neither of them mentioned the occurrence.

During the afternoon, while they were at the house of Kurtz, another agent named Shrack called to see Kurtz. To him Simpson, who had drank heavily during the day, also told the story and reiterated his threats. This man was not so easily frightened as the others had been, and he at once informed Lieutenant Wolf of the Twenty second district, of the affair. Officers went to the house, found the body and arrested Kurtz shortly afterwards. Meantime Simpson had fled, but he is thought to be in hiding in the city.

Wednesday night Coroner's Physician Mattern made a post mortem examination of the remains of the woman, and Deputy Coroner Dugan took charge of the case. No one but the police was admitted to the house. An inquest will probably be held to-day. The woman has a sister residing at 802 Wood street.

Residents in the neighborhood know but little concerning Simpson or Roumell, as he was known to many of them. He moved into the neighborhood about fourteen months ago, and has been engaged in various occupations. He has been with the Prudential Insurance Company but a few weeks, and had insured the life of his wife for $140. The neighbors say he was evidently a Frenchman, a fine-looking man, and that he came from the south. The couple frequently quarrelled, and the woman had been heard to say that she expected Simpson would kill her some time in one of his fits of anger. She is described as having been a fine-looking woman, but did not associate intimately with any of her neighbors.

Walked Gayly to Suicide

After gayly leaving his wife at his home in West Fifty seventh street, New York, Wednesday morning, Nathan Strauss, a popular man in the dry goods district, and local manager for Levi Strauss & Co., tripped into his office at 88 Broadway, to be carried out almost a corpse. He went into the toilet room of the store and shot himself in the right temple. He was carried to Chambers street hospital, where he died shortly afterward.

Conflicting stories regarding the life of the suicide are told by his friends. Some assert that he had no domestic troubles, while others assert that he was frequently seen with a very pretty young woman, and had frequent quarrels at home. He is also said to have been drinking hard of late and losing heavily at the races.

MAINE MELANGE.

Piteous Cases of Poverty Reported in One City.

Some Queer Incidents and Interesting Events

Androscoggin

A aged woman who has recently died in Auburn, not many days ago selected her burial casket, her burial robe and her last home in the cemetery—as it were, auditing her own funeral accounts, with all the composure that she would audit the accounts of a shorter journey.

The Messenger says that there is much suffering from poverty in Lewiston. A woman was found Thursday who said that she and her four children had nothing to eat but apples for all day. A family consisting of father and mother and fourteen children arrived in the city recently, who have been living on bread and water, and for two days had nothing to eat.

The elevator in the Hill mill in Lewiston got out of gear the other day, and dropped four stories. A man who was on it caught hold of one of the cables and escaped going down with it, but the sudden stop of the car in the basement gave the cables such a shock that he was shaken off and followed the elevator, but was not seriously injured.

Aroostook

Fort Fairfield Fenix: Hon. [illegible] Pike of Presque Isle will manufacture only 1,500 tons of starch this year, [illegible] one of the many [illegible] in this business and the starch [illegible] in Aroostook [illegible] is the great industry of this county.

Presque Isle Star-Herald: Saturday a colored troupe which bore the proud title of [illegible] Jubilee Singers arrived here. The members of this company deported themselves in an exclusive and aristocratic manner, and were very anxious not to be confounded in the public mind with Bishop's Company, the band of freedmen preceding them, who had been endeavoring in their necessitous and humble way, to amuse the public. Sunday evening the colored vocalists sought to give a sacred concert in the Opera House, but as they had left their sweet songs in Houlton on the shelf, [illegible] the basso was merely a middle weight and the contralto [illegible] the impression on the audience of a [illegible] through a smoked glass, and lastly, as the concert was a [illegible] the efforts of the band were not wholly appreciated here.

Cumberland

Judge Gould of Portland [illegible] to have [illegible] with men who are guilty of cruelty to animals [illegible] really they deserve more. [illegible] Clark who turned his horse into a field and permitted him to remain there [illegible] in the recent severe storm was sentenced to fifteen days in jail. He appealed.

It's nothing unusual for a bride to wear her grandmother's wedding gown; but Miss [illegible] Stover, a Portsmouth lady, who recently married [illegible] of the Boston & Maine [illegible] between Portsmouth and Portland, recently set a new fashion by having her grandmother's bridal gown altered [illegible] for herself.

If the North Pole is ever discovered the chances are that it will be the work of a Maine man. There is hardly any [illegible] at the gates of the North and waiting for the spring to let down the barriers and here is Capt. William Porter, a native of Brunswick, who has just returned to the Pacific coast from a voyage in the steam whaling vessel Newport, during which he earned the fame of being the man who has penetrated the closest to the North Pole of any known navigator. While in pursuit of whales he reached 81 degrees of latitude, the highest ever before reached was 83 degrees, [illegible] attained by members of the Greely party in 1883.

Kennebec

The number of scarlet fever [illegible] in Waterville which has been so large as to excite considerable alarm, is reported as steadily decreasing. There are now not more than half a dozen families in the city where there are cases, and the physicians now feel that they have the disease under good control. The disease has raged principally on the Plains and the public school in that section have suffered on account of it.

Knox

Steward Palmer, porter at the Bay View House, of Camden, in coming down stairs stepped on something which on examination proved to be a roll of bills amounting to $78. He took it to Mr. Cape, the landlord, who, [illegible] he had dropped the money from his pocket while getting ready to go to the World's Fair, put it in his pocket and thought no more of it. Soon after Mr. W. S. Giles, the contractor, came in and stepping up to the counter to pay a bill put his hand in his pocket to find that a roll of bills which he had there a short time before had disappeared. He supposed he had lost the roll out of doors and as it was raining, very hard, thought it had gone for good. On Mr. Cape's return to the office Clerk [illegible] called his attention to the loss of Mr. Giles's and it was found to be his money and was returned to him at once. Seneca was very much surprised a little later on receiving a little ball of paper from Mr. Giles which on opening proved to be a $5 bill. It is not every hotel which supports a porter as honest as Seneca.

Penobscot

The special town meeting at [illegible] last week was called to order by the deputy town clerk, Mrs. Eliza [illegible] M. Friend, who read the warrant and presided during the election of a moderator, and afterwards took the records of the meeting. The [illegible] correspondent of the Pittsfield Advertiser thinks this is the first instance in [illegible] and perhaps in Maine in which a town meeting was called to order by a lady, and says Mrs. Friend handled the business like a veteran and would make a first class moderator.

York

Edward de Lima, a young New York millionaire, whose mysterious disappearance in January 1892, alarmed his family and created quite a stir, was married in the Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York, Wednesday, to a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Silas Gurney, of Saco, Me. The young man at the time of his disappearance was twenty-three years old, a graduate of Harvard and a member of a mercantile firm. He was found the following August in Paris, France, to which place he had wandered while suffering from the grip.

QUEEN ISABELLA'S STATUE

A Purchaser Has Been Found for Harriet Hosmer's Work

The statue of Queen Isabella, which was conspicuous by its absence at the World's Fair, has secured a resting place at last. It will be remembered that the Isabella Association, a private organization, undertook to provide a fitting memorial of the woman without whose efforts the discovery of Columbus would have been at any rate delayed for several years.

It was three years ago that the Isabella Association commissioned Harriet Hosmer and furnished a design for the statue. It proved to be one of great beauty and the association enthusiastically accepted it. Miss Hosmer went back to Rome to work upon the model. After waiting many weeks she found the project had fallen through, that the Isabella Association was confronted with the commonplace difficulty of lack of funds. At this juncture it was hoped by those who felt it fitting that Queen Isabella should be properly recognized at the Fair, that the Board of Lady Managers would do the gracious and kindly act of completing the work in which the others had failed. But the Board of Lady Managers did not. So that there has been nothing at Chicago to indicate to the casual observer that Americans recognized Queen Isabella as playing any part in the discovery of America.

However, there is the statue, and California, realizing the fact, has come to the front and purchased it. San Francisco will be the proud possessor of Harriet Hosmer's work.

A NOBLE CHARITY.

An Absolutely New Form of Alms-Giving

The Lesson Taught by a Well known Charitable Lady

Her Peculiar Charity and the Wonderful Good it Does

People often think that charity consists in giving money, food or raiment to the poor. This is not so. Sickness is the greatest enemy of the poor and a gift which will cure their sick and suffering goes to the very highest and noblest form of charity.

This lesson was impressed upon the writer by that well known charitable lady, Mrs. S. McMaster, of Watertown, Mass. [illegible] her husband was for fifty years a prominent business man of this place. In the course of conversation she said:

"I suffered from debility and nervous prostration for two years. I was confined to my room for three months. The nerves of the [illegible] stomach and bowels all affected. From the slight exertion my heart would [illegible] and I was [illegible] death [illegible] last rites [illegible] dying.

"My [illegible] that I could [illegible] food for six months and the bowels were very torpid. My condition was certainly deplorable and life was but a burden.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1893.

Figures to be Remembered.

The analysis of the vote taken in the Senate Friday on the substitution of the Free Coinage amendment, as published in THE WHIG Monday morning, developed the fact that had the decision of the question been left to the Democratic Senators the Sherman law would have been wiped out only to be replaced by a Free Coinage law. The Democratic majority in favor of the Free Coinage amendment was two. Another test vote was taken in the Senate Saturday on the motion of a Democratic Senator to substitute the old Bland law for the Voorhees bill. The Senator from Indiana took the floor in opposition to the substitute and made an impassioned plea to his party to stand by the Administration, but when the vote was declared it was found that the Democratic anti-repeal majority had increased to four and the Administration was again saved by the Republicans. The following summary showing the attitude of the two parties on the question up to date is well worth preserving:

VOTE IN SENATE COMMITTEE.

Republicans in favor of Repeal bill	4
Republicans against Repeal bill	1
Republican majority in favor of bill	3
Democrats in favor of Repeal bill	2
Democrats against Repeal bill	4
Democratic majority against bill	2

VOTE IN HOUSE ON RE-ENACTMENT OF BLAND LAW.

Republican vote for Bland law	15
Republican vote against Bland law	110
Republican majority against Bland law	95
Democratic vote for Bland law	112
Democratic vote against Bland law	103
Democratic majority for Bland law	9

VOTE IN THE SENATE ON FREE COINAGE.

Republicans for free coinage	10
Republicans against free coinage	27
Republican majority against free coinage	17
Democrats for free coinage	23
Democrats against free coinage	21
Democratic majority for free coinage	2

VOTE ON BLAND BILL IN SENATE.

Republican vote for Bland law	12
Republican vote against Bland law	24
Republican majority against Bland law	12
Democratic vote against Bland law	20
Democratic vote for Bland law	24
Democratic majority for the Bland law	4

It will thus be seen that of the forty-four Democratic Senators twenty-four favored the substitution of the old Bland law, while of the thirty-seven Republican Senators twenty-four opposed it with one vote lost to the repeal strength by some mischance in the arrangement of pairs. This does not disclose the worst. It is well known that among the twenty-one Democrats who voted against free coinage there were several who had voted for free coinage before, and seven of these were mentioned in the discussion in the Senate. To some of these men the assurance has been given that other financial legislation will be favored or permitted, in harmony with their known opinions, while others have been won by favors of the Administration or have secured important places by reason of their pledges of support. What legislation in the direction of cheap money or soft money will satisfy these men does not yet appear. Senator Voorhees placed so much stress on the State bank scheme, which a majority of the Democrats in the House also strongly favored in their action on Friday, that it is probable this has been indicated as one of the measures which the Administration would not oppose.

On the ballot on the passage of the Voorhees bill, which was reached in the Senate last evening, the Republicans voted two to one in favor of the bill, while the Democratic vote was almost evenly divided. Had the decision of the question been taken without the Republican vote the Democrats and the three Populists would have defeated the bill by a majority of one. The summary of the votes given above shows that the free coinage of silver has only been defeated by the opposition of nearly three-quarters of the Republicans.

Railroad Disasters.

The appalling list of railroad disasters that have occurred since January, will make the year 1893 unpleasantly conspicuous in this respect. If the disasters continue in the same proportion during the remaining two months the list of killed and injured from this cause will be larger than twelve months have shown in a long time in this or any other country. It recalls the worst days of Mississippi steamboating, when lives were recklessly sacrificed to speed, and the time when the wrecks of the frail side-wheel steamers on the Atlantic Ocean brought death to hundreds. Since January 1 last there have been twenty-eight severe disasters on the railroads. This is by no means all the collisions and derailments from which death and injury have resulted, but it includes the principal ones. The list is as follows:

Date.	Railroad.	Killed.	Injured.
Jan. 21	Big Four	33	36
Jan. 24	Great Western	3	60
Feb. 21	West Shore	3	16

The Prospect of Free Lumber.

[Kennebec Journal.]

There is little reason to doubt but what the tariff bill that will be reported by the Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee, when they finally emerge from the "sub-cellar and cave" in which their deliberations are being conducted, will contain very sweeping provisions for the placing of lumber upon the free list. Undoubtedly the duties will be removed from clapboards, laths, pickets, palings, hubs, sawed lumber, not planed or finished, and timber used for spars and in building wharves and timber hewn and sawed, squared or sided, and some other classifications of wood under the existing law. It will be seen, therefore, that the blow aimed at Maine's leading industry by the forthcoming tariff bill bids fair to be about as vicious and far reaching as that aimed by the infamous Mills bill.

It remains to be seen whether the new measure of the Democratic party will as ruthlessly sacrifice the other industries of our State, as the one passed by a Democratic House under direction of the Texas statesman. Then no apprehension was felt by Maine people. We knew that our interests would be carefully looked after by a Republican Senate. Now the conditions are changed. The Democratic party is in full control of the national government and there is nothing to prevent the carrying out of its purposes. It is a party peculiarly out of sympathy with northern interests. It is dominated by Southern men. Nearly all the important chairmanships in Congress are now held by representatives of that section. These men are not only ignorant of the conditions that obtain in the North, but they are indifferent to them. They are in the saddle, and purpose to run things with a high hand.

Woe to the Northern Democrats who attempt to stay their progress. They will be swept aside, with the same contemptuous impetuosity that was accorded the little coterie who endeavored to stay the Tucker bill in its contemplated nullification of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the Federal constitution. It is as safe to assume that the forthcoming Wilson bill will carefully guard Southern interests, as that it will cut right and left and spare not in dealing with those of the North. It is needless to say that the placing of lumber upon the free list will be a severe blow to Maine. It will place our leading industry in direct competition with its Canadian rival. In fact this phase of the new tariff bill might very properly be called "a clause for the benefit of Canadian lumbermen."

Under the new law the advantages of the American market will be freely given our competitors across the line; now they are obliged to pay for the privilege of entering it. Under the Democratic free trade policy the lumber producers of the United States will be obliged to compete upon equal terms with their Canadian rivals for possession of the magnificent market of their own country, which, under Republican rule, they have been permitted to supply. How will they be able to maintain such a contest? In one way only, viz., by reducing the pay of their employes to the Canadian standard. Thus every move of the Democratic party is in the direction of free trade burdens upon the laboring men.

Already in view of the certainty that a Democratic Congress will put lumber upon the free list, the lumbermen of Maine are reducing the wages of their men, in order that they may not be placed at a disadvantage another season in competing with Canadian dealers. To what extent this is being done, even in the Kennebec, we will let our genial Democratic contemporary, the New Age, bear testimony. It says:

"Wages in the woods will also be reduced. Those who received $30 per month last winter will get from $20 to $25 this month. Teamsters, sled-tenders and cooks will get less pay. Swampers' wages will be very low."

This is quite a cut down that has come about as a result of the Democratic free trade programme and it will be heavily felt by the working men of the Kennebec valley in a reduction of the comforts they will be able to buy for their families. Thus does the blighting touch of free trade rest not upon the rich and powerful, but upon those who are dependent upon their daily toil for a livelihood. It must not be imagined, however, that the reduction in the wages of the men employed in the lumber business, so faithfully chronicled by the New Age, is peculiar to Maine. It is the rule all over the country in the lumbering centers, and if the Democratic party carries out its purpose of putting lumber upon the free list these reductions will probably be followed by other and more sweeping ones. Indeed, the State of Maine, in company with a large number of its sister States, appears to be in a fair way to secure a satiety of Democratic "change."

PROLONG LIFE.

One of the things which life assurance can do is to prolong life. It's a notorious fact in human experience that it is worry and not work that kills. The friction engendered by the complicated mental machine, which we call mind, extends to every nerve and fiber of the physical man, and whatever continuously disturbs our peace of mind exhausts our vital forces. To a man of average conscience and affection the thought that his loving wife and promising children would, in the event of his death, be left to an inheritance of poverty, and, so far as his own act, actual want, is a source of daily anxiety in health, and of the most prostrating worriment in sickness. On the contrary, the consciousness that he is the possessor of a life assurance policy guaranteeing comfortable provision when he is gone, is both a sedative and a tonic to a man on a sickbed, more efficacious toward his recovery than medicine. Life assurance helps a man to keep well, and, when ill, helps him to get well, and thus is a prolonger of life.—Insurance and Finance Chronicle.

ANOTHER CRANK.

This Time He Appears in New York.

Assassination of a Man Causes General Stampede.

Several Shots Fired When Police Attempted His Arrest.

Indignant Crowd Threaten Violence, but were Prevented.

NEW YORK Oct 30 An excited workman rushed from the new building of the Postal Telegraph Company at Broadway and Murray street at 4 10 o clock this afternoon and called out that a murderous crank was at large on the ground floor of the building and had shot a clerk of the works and threatened murder by the whole sale

Officers hastened to the spot Inside the building lay Superintendent Frederick F Mathias who had charge of construction for the architects He was bleeding profusely from a bullet wound in his abdomen

A number of badly scared workmen were lurking behind pillars and piles of wood and brick and others crowded the temporary stairs leading to the next story Mathias assailant was concealed behind a pile of bricks in the rear of the building The officers ordered him out, when the man opened fire with a revolver, which was returned by the officers After firing eight shots the man rushed out and was seized and disarmed After being disarmed the man fought desperately and the policemen had to

Used their Clubs to Overcome Him

Hundreds of workmen who were employed in the building and pedestrians from Broadway rushed in and the cry was raised of Lynch him Somebody picked up a brick and struck the fellow over the head The policemen were obliged to turn their attention to saving their prisoner from the fury of the crowd A call was sent in and in a few moments an ambulance arrived from the Chambers street hospital and both the victim and the prisoner were conveyed to the hospital

The prisoner gave his name as Francis Bradley a laborer without a home, Some of the officers think he had been of [illegible] Bradley was wounded twice in the right forearm He had also a scalp wound which it was said was caused by the brick thrown at him after his capture Bradley was first seen lounging around the building in the early morning He was ordered out by Mathias Later he returned

Concealed Himself

behind the bricks and when Mathias attempted to dislodge him he was shot After being arrested Bradley made an incoherent statement about people being after him He said he was in the Grand Army in which he must be [illegible] for he gave 31 years as his age Bradley has never been seen around the building until to-day The police believe that he is crazy and imagined that he was being pursued His injuries are not very severe Mathias is expected to die

And Still Another Crank—Demanded $5 000

NEW YORK Oct 30 A "crank" found his way into the office of Edwin Gould, in the Western Union building 1[illegible]0 Broadway this afternoon and demanded $5 000

He was not [illegible] until a policeman was called and is now locked up in the Tombs He says he is a telegraph operator and his name is Magnolia Andrews

VALKYRIE IN WINTER DRESS

To be Greatly Altered Before Racing in American Waters Next Year.

A New York despatch says Lord Dunraven's yacht Valkyrie is hardly recognizable as she now floats in Lobo's basin at South Brooklyn, shorn of her rigging Her mast was unstepped last week and the spars and rigging stored for the winter

Capt Cranfield and the crew left last Wednesday for England, and the boat is now in charge of only two men, who are engaged in putting her in shape for the cold weather. Next week they will start replacing such of the cabin partitions and fittings as were removed previous to the races.

All the yacht's inside ballast has been taken out and she now floats about eighteen inches above her lines.

The yacht will be put in racing shape by the first of next April, and she will [illegible]

CONGRESSIONAL.

Silver Repeal Bill Passes the Senate Monday Evening.

The Great Majority of Republicans Vote in Affirmative.

Democrats About Evenly Divided on the Bill.

Senate

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30. The Senate resumed its session at 11 A M with crowded galleries and with fifty-two Senators present The silver purchase repeal bill was laid before the Senate and Mr Hunton, Democrat, of Virginia, explained briefly his position He was followed by Mr Cameron, Republican, of Pennsylvania

At 2 P M the managers in charge of the silver repeal bill in the Senate became uneasy about the amount of time likely to be consumed in debate this afternoon

Mr Morgan spoke in opposition to the silver repeal bill for nearly three hours, then his strength began to give out The depleted Senate chamber quickly filled and lagging interest revived Mr Vest of Missouri, took the floor and addressed himself with vigor to the main question, contending that the passage of the bill meant the establishment of gold as the permanent and only standard of value in the United States

Mr Vest was followed by Mr Cockrell, who excited much laughter by alluding to the strange harmony brought about by the demand for the striking down of silver when the "lion at the other end of the avenue and the tiger from New York" lay down together

"The bill will pass" continued Mr Cockrell, "but responsibility will rest on the Republicans"

"Undoubtedly" added Mr Hale of Maine Mr Cockrell closed his speech at 3 47 o'clock and Mr Carey, of Wyoming addressed the Senate Mr Carey referred to the controversy which had arisen in his absence as to the way in which he intended to vote He had never "proffered" his vote to anybody The statement came with bad grace from the Senator from Colorado after all he had said about the manner in which the force bill was defeated

Mr Carey explained why he should vote for unconditional repeal though he had never regarded that as the best way of settling the controversy He would have preferred compromise Mr Dubois claimed there could be no prosperity with a contracted currency and unless speedy prosperity came of the repeal the people would hold those who voted for it to account At the close of Mr Dubois' remark there was a brief lull in the Senate The Vice President announced that the Voorhees bill was before the Senate and was open to amendment

Mr Pasco moved to take up the amendment of which he gave notice last Saturday to appoint a committee of three to establish the ratio between gold and silver by the first of January next after which silver dollars are to be coined of a weight fixed by the Secretary of the Treasury and to be legal tender This amendment Mr Pasco said was now in order unless any other amendment had preceded it Thereupon Mr Stewart proposed another amendment reducing the amount of gold in coinage 25 per cent, so that the amount of gold in a standard dollar should be nineteen and thirty five hundredths grains

This amendment was negatived without division Then Mr Pasco's amendment for a committee to establish a new silver ratio was rejected 20 to [illegible]

After a brief interlude Mr Gray, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, reported the House bill amending the Geary Chinese restriction law Mr Perkins asked that the bill be made a special order for Wednesday next, but on objection by Mr Hoar of Massachusetts that the subject was too important to be disposed of hastily, was sent to the calendar

The Vice President again said the Voorhees bill was before the Senate and open to amendment

Mr Jones, of Nevada, expressing extreme reluctance to again ask the indulgence of the Senate, said he would proceed as rapidly as possible to conclude his argument commenced two weeks ago and interrupted Friday last He characterized the gold interest as a moloch which would sacrifice a million men women and children to its insatiate greed and said if the people of the United States did not destroy the gold standard it would destroy them

At 6 20 Mr Harris asked Mr Jones whether it would suit him to have the Senate adjourn now, and finish his speech to-morrow The suggestion was agreeable to Mr Jones and Mr Harris moved that the Senate adjourn till to-morrow at 11 A M He spoke of the absurdity of keeping up the false pretense of letting all the proceedings of the last fortnight appear as if of the legislative Tuesday, the 17th The suggestion was made by Mr Morrill that an hour to-morrow 1 P M be fixed for the final vote but Mr Harris while asserting his readiness to end the matter at any moment, would not agree to unanimous consent

A plea was made by Mr Voorhees in favor of taking a final vote before adjournment Finally Mr Harris withdrew his motion and Mr Jones proceeded with his speech He asserted that the result of the passage of the pending measure would be to filch from the labor [illegible] a portion of his poor reward and thus turn the blessings of material progress into curses This was but the commencement of the fight Those who, against the constantly increasing value of the unit of money, proposed to go before the people and see that every man woman and child in the United States should understand the full meaning of what the Senate intended to do to-day

Mr Peffer saying that he desired to occupy but fifteen minutes proceeded to show up what he called the "crowning infamy of this controversy"

Mr Harris and Mr Stewart made a few closing remarks The latter said the betrayal and capture of the White House and the two Houses of Congress was not the end of the war When Mr Stewart closed the Vice President stated that if no further amendment was offered, the vote would be taken on the engrossment and third reading of the bill That was agreed to without division and the vote was taken by yea and nay on the passage of the bill, and as amended it passed—yeas 43, nays 32, as follows

As soon as the vote was announced Mr Voorhees made a motion to adjourn and the Senate at 7 30 o clock P M adjourned till to morrow at noon

House

Mr. Hunter, Democrat, of Illinois, submitted a resolution expressing the astonishment and sorrow of the House at the news of the violent death of Carter Harrison, mayor of Chicago, and formerly a member of the House The resolution was unanimously agreed to

The urgent deficiency appropriation bill was returned from the Senate with amendments and was sent to conference On motion of Mr Dingley, Republican, of Maine, a resolution was passed changing the system of receiving bids for government supplies for the executive departments, so as to cause them to be received simultaneously

The bankruptcy bill was taken up

Mr Draper, of Massachusetts, spoke in defense of the bill. Mr Culberson, of Texas, in an amusing speech, attacked the bill. Mr. Dingley, of Maine, said he had not intended to speak on the bill, but would leave that duty to the legal minds of the House. He regretted that the previous speaker (Mr. Culberson) had seen fit to drag in partisan prejudice, as the question was purely a business one, with not a single element of partisanship in it, nor anything which could divide [illegible] party lines. He did not [illegible] of the bill, [illegible]

THE LAST ACT.

Close of the World's Fair on Monday.

End of Grandest Exposition the World Has Ever Seen.

Simple But Impressive Exercises Mark the End.

Flags of All Nations Lowered at Booming of Cannon.

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS Chicago, Oct 30 At sunset, [illegible], the colors of all nations which have been flying at half mast since sunrise on Sunday, were lowered together as they were unfurled within sight of President Cleveland at noon May 1st

At the word of command from the artillery officers the guns of the battery facing Lake Michigan belched forth the signal and a hundred men stationed at the various flag staffs on the departmental buildings, lowered the flags

It was an impressive scene and the thousands of visitors who viewed the spectacle could not refrain from sighing and regretting that the exposition was at end In [illegible] Thirteenth Regiment Band of New York city, had been playing in the Court of Honor during the afternoon

The last flag to be pulled down was one of the three

Facing the Court of Honor

from the Administration building It was lowered by the World's Fair newspaper men and as Old Glory reached the ground a great cheer and tiger arose The New York Band played the "Star Spangled Banner" and concluded with "America" A cheer went up from the throng assembled within hearing of the [illegible] strains

After the sound of the bugle from the Administration building the World's Fair became a part of history

The Midway Plaisance will cease to exist to-morrow night as a part of the Fair Director General Davis having made an order this afternoon closing the doors of every exposition attraction

Pandemonium Reigned

to-night in the Midway Plaisance Nothing like it was ever witnessed before in Chicago Everybody celebrated the closing hours of the exposition Processions of men carrying all kinds of signs marched up and down the Midway to the screeching music of the horns until it seemed as if bedlam had broke loose

AMUSEMENTS

William Barry in The Rising Generation

The popular Irish comedian, William Barry will appear at the Opera House this evening in his new play, "The Rising Generation" The New York World in a notice of the play, has the following

Martin McShane Mr Barry's new part, is a hard working man in the first act He defies the capitalist and promises in time to be the rich man's equal In the second act he is seen as a wealthy, good natured middle aged man and triumphs over his former persecutors by showing them the result of his thrift In the third act his popularity is proven by his constituents, who elect and send him to the State Senate as their honored representative Mr Barry embraced every opportunity to show the different phases of this versatile character, and succeeded in pleasing a large audience immensely

His rich brogue that characteristic stride of his and that comical face all kept the audience in a roar constantly He was called before the curtain repeatedly after each act

The company is a good one There are comedians who can sing and dance soubrettes who can look pretty, and a male quartet who made hits by singing some new songs Three weeks is not long for Mr Barry to remain in New York, for "The Rising Generation" is one of those plays New York never tires of Mr Harrigan never in his career produced a better play, and Mr Barry can lay claim at being a dangerous rival in this style of work

Arthur Deming

Next Wednesday November 1st the well known minstrel Mr Arthur Deming will appear with his own company at the Opera House and together with Sweet & DeCoursey's Comedy Company will present a double bill including both a complete minstrel performance and the farce comedy "A Stranger" Mr Deming's reputation in this city is well known and the names of the entire company are almost as familiar as his The sale of reserved seats opened yesterday

WANTED TO SEE ALTGELD

Prendergast Made a Fruitless Call at the Governor's Chicago Offices

A Chicago Ill despatch says It developed to-day that Prendergast had made a fruitless call at the offices of Gov Altgeld last week This fact came out after C J Ford saw the murderer's picture in the morning papers

Last Friday Mr Ford who is private secretary to the Governor at the Governor's suite in the Unity building was approached by a repulsive looking man in shabby clothes The fellow asked if Gov Altgeld was in

It so happened that the Governor had taken a run to Chicago from the executive office in Springfield to look after his private business, having arrived in the city Wednesday It was evident that Prendergast knew of Altgeld's presence in the city

Ford did not like the looks of the man "What do you want to see the Governor for?" he asked

"It's long about time that I had the fellow I want a job and he promised to get me one"

The Governor was at the time in his private office busily engaged with clients

Ford told him that it would be impossible for him to see the Governor that he was not to see anybody

The strange mutterings of the man about an office and that his business was a decidedly of a most important nature His looks, his dress and his talking were all against him and presently the fellow left the office

When seen to-day Mr Ford said "The fellow did not tell his name I did not think it of sufficient importance to ask him I heard of Mayor Harrison's assassination and was curious to know what the murderer looked like When I saw the pictures in the morning papers I recognized in the murderer of the Mayor the would be caller upon the Governor To say I was astonished is putting it mildly I have not the slightest idea what his object was in trying to secure an audience with the Governor Perhaps he'd intended to kill him—who knows"

The fact that Prendergast tried to meet the Governor is the subject of much comment all over the city to-night Some people incline to the belief that Prendergast had an official tender also

The prisoner when asked if he had attempted to meet the Governor, refused to speak

It is one of the odd features of the case that only time can unravel It is certain that the man did not see Altgeld

The Governor attended the inquest to-day

Chickering—Russell

Mr John J Chickering principal of the preparatory department of Columbian University of Washington D C, son of Prof Chickering, formerly of this city and Miss Anne [illegible] Russell daughter of ex Congressman William A Russell were united in marriage Saturday at North Andover, Mass Not only was the event a notable society one, but it brought together a large number of political and educational leaders of the country

The house interior was elaborately decorated with white chrysanthemums, tall palms and garlands of laurel, tied with white satin ribbons The Germania orchestra was in attendance

At 12 o'clock the ushers including Messrs W S Lawson of Newton, G H Corning, of Washington, I H Hilton of Milton William Russell, a brother of the bride and G Frederick Russell, her cousin led the march to the drawing room which was gayly garnitured with chrysanthemums, daisies and asparagus vines Then came Miss Beth Russell, younger sister of the bride, in a simple gown of white muslin

Mrs Russell, mother of the bride, was in black grenadine over silk trimmed with lavender chiffon Miss Mary Russell a sister of the bride, was in heliotrope crepe Miss Chickering, sister of the groom, was gowned in white silk, with blue velvet trimmings, and Miss Mary Russell, another sister of the bride, was attired in pink China silk

She carried chrysanthemums and was followed by the bride, a tall blonde of pleasing personality, who was escorted by her father She was attired in a princess robe of white satin en traine and carried Bride roses Her high corsage was decorated with point applique lace and a wreath of orange blossoms fastened the flowing tulle veil that enveloped her graceful form

In front of the bay window overlooking the lake, and under a huge floral bell of chrysanthemums, the Congregational service was read by Rev George A Gordon, of the South Congregational church of Boston, and Rev J W Chickering, of Washington, an uncle of the groom Mr Lawrence Abbott of New York, was best man After the ceremony congratulations were in order

After an extended tour Mr and Mrs Chickering will reside in Washington

FOOT BALL

Maine State College Will Play Bangor High School This Afternoon at Maplewood

The Maine State College team will come to Bangor and play the High School team at Maplewood this afternoon at 2 30 It will be a fine game and there ought to be a big crowd present The collegians are heavier than the High School boys but the latter hope to offset the advantage in weight with skill and rapid play The teams are very evenly matched and a hard fought contest will doubtless be the result

The crowd which witnessed the game between the High School and the Bowdoin sophomores was much interested in the game and there was great enthusiasm Those who attend the contest of this afternoon will doubtless find plenty of excitement in the quick movements of the game The High School team is in debt and a large crowd will aid the finances as well as encourage the local players

The M S C was unable to come to Bangor yesterday and sent word to that effect in the morning

THE WHIG yesterday received the following letter which explains itself

13 STEWART STREET }
AUGUSTA Me Oct 30, 93 }

Foot Ball Editor Whig and Courier

Dear Sir Owing to great ill luck we have been forced to cancel the game with the Bangor High School team arranged for November 4th at Augusta Both our guards are laid off on account of sickness and the full back on account of injuries The rest of the players with one exception, are all new and inexperienced men The condition of the team is such that we will be unable to play for some time and it is more than likely that the team will be disbanded in a few days

Respectfully yours
FRANCIS WOODBURY,
Manager of the Cony High School Foot Ball Team

All members of the Young Men's Christian Association interested in the game of foot ball will confer a favor by leaving their names with the Physical Director Mr [illegible] intends to form [illegible] team if possible [illegible] and the High School team would [illegible] material benefit from daily play and the out of door exercise would prove beneficial to the players It is hoped that enough will respond to the call to organize an eleven

It is expected that Bowdoin and Tufts will play at Brunswick to-morrow afternoon and if they do it will be a game worth going miles to see Tufts is playing [illegible] and since the team defeated [illegible] 6 0 football stock has risen at Tufts Two of the men in Bowdoin's [illegible] have been out of condition recently owing to injuries but the team will play Tufts a good game Next Saturday Bowdoin will either play Amherst or B A A in Boston

The Bowdoin sophomores will play the Hebron Academy team this week

It is planned now to have the season close with a series of class games at Bowdoin just before Thanksgiving The senior and junior teams will play, then the sophomore and freshman teams, and the [illegible] winners for the class championship of the college Varsity players will be excluded from the class teams All the classes have splendid players, exclusive of their varsity men and as class feeling runs high there will be some exciting games The freshman eleven has arranged to play the Bates sophomores and each class team will probably play a number of games before the series

DROWNING ACCIDENT.

A Sailor Loses His Life in the River.

A sailor known as John Somers belonging on board the schooner Lester A Lewis which has been loading lumber at the wharf of the Smith Planing Mill Company lost his life by drowning yesterday forenoon, falling accidentally from the vessel and sinking before he could be rescued

He was employed in painting at the bow of the schooner and it is supposed lost his balance and fell overboard He was seen by [illegible] on another [illegible] by and the alarm was given A rope was thrown him but he seemed dazed and failing to grasp it and [illegible] was carried by the current beneath the vessels several of which were lying abreast at the spot [illegible] was at about 10 30 o'clock in the forenoon and in something less than two hours the body was found by Daniel Golden below the vessels Coroner Finnegan of Bangor was summoned and the remains were taken to [illegible] rooms, where after the examination of the body by a physician [illegible] decided that no inquest was necessary the drowning having evidently been purely accidental

The man had been with the Lester A Lewis since [illegible] September and was at the time of his death temporarily [illegible] It was known that his name was not Somers he having told the steward so and among his effects were some English [illegible] papers giving his name as [illegible] He was evidently a German about twenty [illegible] years of age and from papers in his pockets [illegible] is supposed to have well to do relatives in London Eng The captain of the vessel speaks very highly of him as a [illegible] and he was well liked by those who knew him

The Poultry Yard

Although the climate of New England is considered severe in winter by non residents, yet it is a remarkable fact that poultry thrive better in New England than in any other section of the United States and it is known that so far as the introduction of new breeds is concerned, New England has been the foundation source from which all portions of this country have been supplied An advantage in this climate is its dryness in winter, and for that reason the cold is not as severely felt as in more favored locations in the South where the temperature is higher but where there is greater humidity

It has been demonstrated that a cold dry atmosphere is more favorable to the raising of poultry than a damp climate and the roup prevails to greater extent every winter in the south than in New England In the summer season the poultry in warm climates in addition to being more subject to lice are also at the mercy of [illegible] insects that are unknown in this section and both eggs and poultry are sent to Florida every year from New England

We are also favored with the best markets in the country three large cities having a population of over half a million each are within easy access by rail and steamers while numerous smaller cities and towns are found almost within an hour's ride by rail of every farm With all these advantages in favor of our farmers there is no reason why poultry should not be made a specialty on every farm, and instead of being secondary the poultry industry should be a leading one The poorest sandy soil or the stony land is as well if not better adapted to poultry raising as the most fertile tracts and the capital and labor required are less in proportion to profits obtained than for general farming or stock raising and there is open a large field for employment in winter Farmers who have heretofore regarded poultry raising as a pursuit for the women only should give the facts their consideration

The Breeding Yard

How many poultrymen or farmers are there who [illegible] what kind of chicken an egg will bring forth We are sure that very few [illegible] to know anything of the breeding of the chicks before the eggs are incubated when a large flock of hens and several males have the run of the farm but it is possible to know something of what should result when a few hens are yarded with one male That there will be [illegible] assured but there will be no certainty of which hen is the dam, or which laid certain eggs that were collected As to the very much it is at times desirable to set the eggs of a [illegible] particular hen in order to perpetuate her good qualities There will be nothing gained if all of the hens are of the same breed [illegible] there will at least be uniformity among the chicks [illegible] where the poultry yard is convenient for observation some of the hens will be known to lay [illegible] eggs of peculiar shape or of uniform color This matter is worthy of attention where flocks are to be improved

Economical Preparations

The most useless thing for winter is a water fountain of earthenware as it will surely break as soon as the contents are froze and [illegible] almost [illegible] serviceable in winter [illegible] do any damage if [illegible] fence allows the wind to [illegible] full sweep through the yards If wire fences [illegible] bottom portion of board at least two feet from the ground and then use wire [illegible] windbreak to the yard [illegible] eggs [illegible] the farmer will lose by it [illegible] cost little [illegible] provided [illegible] water from the [illegible] fowl later on [illegible] snows and rains will be visiting us every week

Young Trees in Yards

It has no doubt been noticed that when fowls are kept in yards no green food is permitted by them to grow and the yard are perfectly bare of vegetation When young trees are planted in poultry yards the hens [illegible] insects and allow none to escape them They also enrich the ground by their droppings As poultry yards might as well contain trees to render the bare it will be an advantage to plant trees and they will in time provide [illegible] A plot of [illegible] to produce both fruit and poultry and the two crops will be advantageous to the poultryman Experiments in growing plums in the poultry yards point to success the ravages of the curculio being lessened or prevented, while the peach trees planted in some yards were protected against the borer, compared with trees outside When the large orchard of course the [illegible] so much protection as when confined

The World's Fair Poultry Show.

According to the latest reports the entries to the poultry show of the World's Fair have already reached [illegible] birds and Canada has the largest number entered The show [illegible] in October [illegible] and the American Poultry Association meets on the 28[illegible] It is not creditable to us that Canada should take greater interest in the poultry exhibit than we for we have every facility for exhibiting and transporting the birds [illegible] quite complimentary [illegible] that she should excel [illegible] hopes that by the time the show [illegible] our breeders will [illegible] in force

Keeping Pure Breeds

There is money only in the selling of eggs of pure bred fowls [illegible] farmer [illegible] use of the [illegible] advertise the eggs Before doing so however aim to procure the best stock to be had The first cost is [illegible] matter compared with the satisfaction given the customers and the pleasure of producing choice specimens If the farmers will keep pure bred they will take an interest in fowls and also greatly benefit their communities by improving the stock

Livers as Cheap Food

Sheep and hog livers are usually sold cheap and if boiled, with ground grain added until a thick mass is formed we doubt if any better egg producing food [illegible] considering the cost, can be secured In nearly all markets the livers can be procured and they may be fed raw or cooked but it is better to [illegible] them The best grain to use is ground oats though a small proportion of corn meal and bran will also be of advantage

Agricultural Schools

The demand for special agricultural education is not confined to this country Europe is doing more for agricultural education than are Americans We need farm training schools Prof Henry's short term course in the Wisconsin University is a good thing but does not cover the entire ground The Mark Lane Express gives a brief account of a private agricultural school and training farm just opened in Avecote Priory, Tamworth by Prof W C Taylor formerly principal of the Aspatria Agricultural College We quote from it

The school is in the centre of a large mixed farm of 1000 acres three miles from Tamworth Railway station on the L & Northwestern and Midland main lines The aims of the new undertaking, as described in a prospectus are chiefly these To provide at a moderate cost such opportunities as will enable the students to be well prepared to encounter the difficulties of home or colonial farming

The pupils are to receive a good general education, and education in the sciences connected with agriculture, and the methods to be practically applied in the daily farm work During the school sessions all are to receive lessons daily in farm practice, and join in its routine, according to age and ability The nature of soils, rotation of crops seeds manures and distinctions of breeds in cattle, sheep and swine, will form part of the curriculum, as well as plowing drilling, fencing draining and the use of farming implements, machinery and tools The education given is intended to fit the students to become farmers graziers stewards, land agents, or sheep farmers

The size of seed potatoes has been considered at the Michigan station and in bulletin 93 the results of the experiments there and at 12 other stations are given It says that a great many growers do not give enough of the potato for seed The half potato is better than a small piece, and where the varieties are very small [illegible] quarter or one-third In nearly all of the experiments the results were in favor of the half potato, and only a small percentage in favor of the two-eyed system

Catherine de Medici's Doctor

Pharnelius like many other physicians was much addicted to philosophy and mathematics, but having taken to medicine he speedily attained a great practice Henry II as dauphin and afterward as king was his constant friend Among the most grateful of his patients was Catherine de Medici, who believed that his skill had saved her from a state of childlessness, and who gave him on the birth of her firstborn $10 000 ordering that a like sum should be paid to him at the birth of each succeeding son or daughter I think that Cardano liked Pharnelius better than he liked Sylvius He says he was a pale lean man of about 50 who loved his study and was full of domestic affection He was the professor of medicine in the university and the first court physician but he must have puzzled Cassanato greatly for he had an [illegible] disdain and contempt for court society —Blackwood's Magazine

Tipping the Dean of St. Paul's.

At the Duke of Wellington's funeral a lady having a ticket for a reserved seat presented [illegible] at the wrong entrance to St Paul's and knocked vigorously The dean [illegible] opened the door pointed out to her the mistake she had made and indicated the proper entrance She quite unaware whom she was addressing and mistaking him for one of the minor officials utterly refused again to face the seething crowd and insisted on being conducted to her seat or she would report him Of course he [illegible] and presently slipped half a crown into her [illegible] palm Needless to say the dean was delighted and did not fail to exhibit his tip —Notes and Queries

KID GLOVES.

A PRESENT WITH EVERY PAIR.

Probably very few if any, ladies when purchasing a pair of Kid Gloves and possibly finding fault with the price have any idea of the care and labor required in the selection of the skins, the cutting and making of such goods, as will be accepted at the present day as first-class Every season brings new ideas and novelties in the trade, and the gloves worn a few years ago by the fashionable world would not be tolerated to-day Kid Gloves are an important branch in many dry goods stores at the present time but few have the facility of managing this department with any profit to themselves or satisfaction to their customers

One reason is they buy poor goods in order to sell them cheap as the public are always clamoring for something cheap and when bought, never satisfied

We have spent years in studying the best way to manage a Kid Glove department, and long ago we became convinced that we could not build up a lasting business on cheap goods that the best gloves to be had were the cheapest in the end while poor gloves were not cheap at any price

Without being egotistical we believe we carry one of the best stocks of Kid Gloves this side of Boston We seek to keep the best makes that can be had and sell them at a small profit in fact, just the same prices they are sold in the larger cities

We import many of our Kid Gloves ourselves and therefore are obliged to buy large quantities In order to reduce our large stock we will give a nice present with every pair of Kid Gloves sold until further notice to all customers who apply before eleven o'clock [illegible] after eleven no presents will be given
